

POWERFUL EDUCATIONAL TRANSFORMATIONAL

Presents
Randy Pausch
“Time Management”

Old Cabell Hall Auditorium
Tuesday, November 27, 3:00 p.m.

Free and open to the public

Dr. Pausch was a professor in the Department of Computer Science at U.Va.’s School of Engineering and Applied Science from 1988-1997, and a professor at Carnegie Mellon University since 1997. Despite being in the final stages of terminal pancreatic cancer, Dr. Pausch has spent much of his remaining time helping others and sharing his life’s philosophy with the world through lectures and interviews. Dr. Pausch is 47 years old and married with three children, ages 1, 3 and 5. His recent lecture on “Really Achieving Your Childhood Dreams” was featured by Oprah, ABC and CBS news, and the Wall Street Journal, and millions have been moved by his candor and positive message. This lecture will focus on how you can get the most out of your time, no matter how much or how little time you have left.

Come join us in welcoming Randy Pausch back to U.Va.!

For more info, see www.cs.cmu.edu/~pausch and www.cs.virginia.edu/robins/Randy